There are three types of sentence structures: simple, complex, and compound. A simple sentence has only one independent clause. Complex ones have one independent clause and one dependent clause. The compound type... You simply cannot write properly without understanding sentence structure. This doesn't mean that you have to do the old sentence diagramming technique every time you write, and it doesn't mean that you have to be able to name every kind of sentence that you write. However, you do need to begin with a basic understanding of how to form a sentence and what it means to write a complete thought. With enough practice, writing a complete sentence becomes second nature. You will learn different rules and techniques for writing sentences, depending on whether you are an elementary, middle school, or high school student. One way to practice is with relevant and helpful worksheets that can help you gain a thorough understanding of structuring sentences. Primary students might need practice writing basic sentences or using the correct punctuation. Intermediate students might need practice writing longer or more complex sentences. Middle and high school students may need review, but will probably be ready to move on to even more complex types of sentences. Below, we provide you with a series of worksheets for sentence writing that allow you to build the most crucial skills you need. In addition, Time4Writing's online writing courses provide practice in this area. The courses that focus on sentence writing and sentence structure are these: Elementary School Sentence Writing Worksheets Middle School Sentence Writing Worksheets High School Sentence Writing Worksheets Read each group of words below. Is it a sentence or a fragment? Write S (for sentence) or F (for fragment) on the line. There are four kinds of sentence structures: simple, compound, complex, and compound complex. They are all created by using only two kinds of clauses: independent clauses and subordinate (dependent) clauses. A compound sentence contains two or more related simple sentences joined by a conjunction. A conjunction is a word like and, as, for, yet or but that connects words or groups of words. A comma is used before a conjunction. Each sentence below is either simple, compound, complex, or compound complex. Read each sentence. Then, below it, write a sentence that is similar in structure. Read each sentence. Is the underlined group of words a phrase or a clause? Write your answer on the line. As you go along, circle the simple sentence can contain a compound subject, a compound verb, and any number of phrases. Read each of the following compound sentences.
